AMCOR AGREES TO 16.67% SHAREHOLDING IN K LASER

Amoor today announced it has entered into an agreement to subscribe for new shares to purchase a 16.67% shareholding in K Laser China; a subsidiary of the Taiwan publicly listed K Laser Technology (H.K) Company Ltd for a consideration of approximately US$10 million. It also has options to invest a further US$15 million in new shares and acquire existing shares for US$12.6 million to increase its shareholding in K Laser China to 50.1% over the next two years.

Amoor will also purchase 5.6 million new shares in K Laser Technology, for a consideration of US$3.5 million, giving it a 4.2% shareholding in that company. K Laser has an option to require Amoor to invest a further US$8.2 million in K Laser Technology over the next two years upon the exercise of Amoor s options in K Laser China.

K Laser is a global leader in the production of holographic films that are used extensively in the manufacture of tobacco packaging in the Chinese market and increasingly in other packaging applications. Full details of the operations and technologies of K Laser Technology and K Laser China are on their website www.klaser.com.tw

Amcor s Managing Director and CEO, Mr Ken Mackenzie, said: As part of the portfolio review process, which commenced in August 2005, the tobacco packaging market in China has been identified as a strategic growth opportunity for Amcor. Over the past 12 months the company has developed a leading position in the manufacture of tobacco packaging in China through its investment in the Hong Kong publicly listed company Vision Grande.

The investment in K Laser China and the parent company K Laser Technology, is an important step in expanding Amcor s portfolio of value-added packaging materials by accessing leading technology in the development and production of holographic films. These films are increasingly being used in the manufacture of tobacco packaging for premium products in the Chinese market.

K Laser is a global leader in these value-added packaging materials with an established footprint in the growing Chinese market. Amoor has elected to take an initial stake in K Laser China of 16.67% with options to increase its shareholding to 50.1% in two years. This is a similar approach to that used in Vision Grande. The investment in K Laser Technology will allow Amoor and K Laser to work together to expand the market for holographic films in other geographic segments.

Amoor will initially have the right to appoint two Directors to the Board of K Laser China.
