The Revised Bylaws of Cordia provide that Cordia shall not have less than three (3) directors. Subject to the foregoing limitation, such number may be fixed from time to time by action of the Board of Directors or of the stockholders. COMPENSATION DISCUSSION & ANALYSIS

General Philosophy

We compensate our senior management through a mix of base salary, bonus, and equity compensation designed to be competitive with comparable employers and to align management's incentives with the long-term interests of our stockholders. Compensation is based on numerous factors, including the responsibilities of the position, the experience of the executive officer, and the performance of the executive officer. Adequate compensation of key officers and employees is a key factor in their retention, and the retention of these employees is integral to Cordia's success.

Base Salaries

We want to provide our senior management with a level of assured compensation in the form of base salary that facilitates an appropriate lifestyle given their professional status and accomplishments. These salaries reflect levels that we concluded were appropriate based on our general experience and knowledge of the telecommunications industry and local labor markets. We use this base salary as the primary form of compensation for our executives, and we have found that salaries for our executive officers are below average in comparison to those of our direct competitors. A review of Cordia's profit margin may show the salaries to be large in relation, but it is imperative that we retain our skilled and talented officers in order to achieve a greater degree of corporate success. We are a small company that relies on a few significant employees to ensure that our business operates efficiently. If we were to lose one of these employees it may effect our business operations and we would experience difficulty in replacing them. We believe that our success in the telecommunications industry depends on our ability to continue to retain highly skilled and knowledgeable staff.

Bonuses

Our practice is to award performance based cash bonuses. This bonus is determined by the Compensation Committee after an evaluation of the executive's performance over the last fiscal year, and then taken to the Board of Directors for approval. As described above, it is imperative that we retain the executive officers that we currently have on staff. To this end the bonus is a large factor in securing these employees, and also serves as an incentive to maximize their performance. In order to compete in a market where our competitors have greater capital and resources, retention of these key officers and employees is critical.

Equity Compensation

Historically, the primary form of equity compensation that we awarded has consisted of stock options and restricted stock awards. We selected this form because we believe the recipients of stock options and restricted stock awards are motivated to help the company perform well, thereby increasing the value of their equity in the company. In addition, since the awards vest over several years, executives are motivated to remain with Cordia to realize the value of the equity. Option grants of this nature are essential for our company to be able to hire and retain key significant employees, as well as reward employees, officers, and consultants for performance during the previous fiscal year.

Severance Benefits

Cordia does not currently provide our executive officers with any type of severance package.

Retirement Plan

Cordia provides its employees with a 401(k) plan, pursuant to which we match 50% of employee contributions, up to 3% of their salary. For the fiscal years 2006 and 2007, we have implemented a safe harbor matching contribution. The match is equal to 100% of salary deferrals up to 3% of the employee's compensation, plus 50% of salary deferrals in excess of 3% of compensation but not in excess of 5% compensation. Under the safe harbor, the maximum safe harbor matching contribution is 4%. The safe harbor matching contributions are 100% vested at all times.

Employment Contracts and Change in Control

Cordia does not have any employment contracts between itself and its executive officers. No other compensatory plan or arrangements exist between Cordia and its executive officers that results or will result from the resignation, retirement or any other termination of such executive officer's employment with Cordia or from a change-in-control of Cordia.

Perquisites and Other Benefits

Aside from reimbursement of business related expenses, the officers of Cordia Corporation receive no perquisites or other benefits.

Board Process

The Board of Directors approves all compensation and awards to executive officers and employees, and recommendations are brought before the Board for approval by our Compensation Committee. Generally, compensation decisions are based on contractual commitments, if any, as well as corporate performance, the level of individual responsibility of the particular executive and individual performance.
