With the actions announced this quarter, we have now outperformed this target and expect considerations from divestiture actions to now exceed $11 billion. This quarter, we have completed both the ANGUS and the Sodium Borohydride transactions, and of course just a few weeks ago we announced the most significant action in the series: a transaction with Olin to divest a substantial portion of our chlorine value chain.

This transaction, particularly with its tax-efficient, win-win structure, will enable shareholders of both companies to benefit from the significant upside opportunity of the new Olin. From a Dow perspective, the transaction will enable us to continue our drive to grow in our higher-value markets as we continue to go narrower and deeper with our portfolio, and will enable the new Olin to become a first-tier competitor across the chlorine envelope.

Okay, great. My follow-up, just a clarification. When we heard you last on the Olin announcement for the Chlor-Alkali spin, I think you mentioned that it would be accretive to EPS by about a nickel. Just clarifying; is that inclusive of the ethylene deal that you signed with them and the moratorium on share buybacks for the rest of this year?

HOWARD UNGERLEIDER

Yes, definitely. It's all-in.

Note: The forward looking statements contained in this document involve risks and uncertainties that may affect Dow's and Olin's operations, markets, products, services, prices and other factors as discussed in filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC"). These risks and uncertainties include, but are not limited to, economic, competitive, legal, governmental and technological factors. Accordingly, there is no assurance that the expectations of either company will be realized. This document also contains statements about Dow's agreement to separate a substantial portion of its chlor-alkali and downstream derivatives business, distribute the business to Dow shareholders and then merge it with a subsidiary of Olin (the "Transaction"). Many factors could cause actual results to differ materially from these forward-looking statements with respect to the Transaction, including risks relating to the completion of the transaction on anticipated terms and timing, including obtaining shareholder and regulatory approvals, anticipated tax treatment, unforeseen liabilities, future capital expenditures, revenues, expenses, earnings, synergies, economic performance, indebtedness, financial condition, losses, future prospects, business and management strategies for the management, expansion and growth of the new combined company's operations, Olin's ability to integrate the business successfully and to achieve anticipated synergies, and the risk that disruptions from the Transaction will harm Dow's or Olin's business. While the list of factors presented here is considered representative, no such list should be considered to be a complete statement of all potential risks and uncertainties. Unlisted factors may present significant additional obstacles to the realization of forward looking statements. Consequences of material differences in results as compared with those anticipated in the forward-looking statements could include, among other things, business disruption, operational problems, financial loss, legal liability to third parties and similar risks, any of which could have a material adverse effect on Dow's or Olin's consolidated financial condition, results of operations or liquidity. Neither Dow nor Olin assumes any obligation to provide revisions to any forward looking statements should circumstances change, except as otherwise required by securities and other applicable laws.
