ING to acquire Latin American pension business for USD 1.3 billion (EUR 960 million)

ING announced today that it has reached an agreement with Santander to acquire its Latin American pension businesses to further strengthen ING's position in this fast growing market. The mandatory pension fund management companies (AFPs), which are located in Mexico, Chile, Colombia, and Uruguay will make ING the second largest pension fund manager in Latin America. ING and Santander are also in separate discussions regarding Santander's pension and annuities business in Argentina, which is not included in the acquisition at this stage.

Under the terms of the agreement, ING will acquire 100 percent of Santander's shares of these pension businesses for a total consideration of USD 1.3 billion (EUR 960 million). This will be financed entirely from existing internal resources. The proposed purchase will have no impact on the ongoing share buy-back program.

Michel Tilmant, Chairman of the Executive Board of ING Group said, "This acquisition is in line with our strategy to support the strong organic growth of the Group with suitable add-on acquisitions, while further strengthening our wealth accumulation business in developing markets. The transaction will give us a sustainable, scaled platform in this important region where we see attractive macro-economic and demographic trends that are driving demand for wealth management products.

Santander's Latin American pension business (excluding Argentina) currently has more than 5.5 million customers and 5,084 employees and distributes its products primarily through a network of tied agents. In 2006 its Latin American pension business reported 13.8 billion of assets under management by year end and after tax profits of 64 million. ING's pension expertise in the region, combined with the solid local management from Santander's pension companies, will facilitate a smooth integration and maximization of synergies to achieve ING's growth targets.

Tom McInerney, ING Executive Board member and CEO for ING Insurance Americas said, "This transaction represents an attractive opportunity for long-term growth in Latin America as ING expands its wealth accumulation core competency in the region. ING's financial strength, global brand recognition, retirement services and investment management capabilities comprise the foundation for our growth strategy.

As a global leader in retirement services and wealth accumulation, ING continues to expand its presence in developing markets. ING is the second largest foreign life insurer in Asia Pacific and the largest life and pension insurer in Central Europe. Moving to second place in Latin America's pension market will give ING an exceptional global reach," Michel Tilmant added.

Table of Contents

ING and Santander's Latin American pension business (excluding Argentina) had, in aggregate, 35.5 billion of assets under management at the end of 2006. ING expects to double its pension fund AUM in the region between 2008 and 2011. Based on the purchase price, the transaction reflects a Price/ Earnings multiple of 15.1 times the 2006 earnings. It is expected to be negligible to ING's EPS in 2008 and accretive from 2009 onwards, excluding the impact of amortisation of intangibles. The impact on the debt equity ratio of ING Group is expected to be approximately 160 bps.

ING already has established positions in the pension fund markets of Chile and Mexico, and separately from this transaction, is the number one pension fund manager in Peru. This transaction will extend ING's pension expertise to two new countries, namely Colombia and Uruguay, both of which are showing a steady GDP growth and an increasing demand for wealth management products. Once the acquisition closes, ING will be the number three pension provider in Mexico, number three in Chile, number five in Colombia and number two in Uruguay. The transactions are subject to various national regulatory approvals and are expected to close during the end of 2007 and in early 2008.
