SCHEDULE OF ADDITIONAL PROVISIONS RELATING TO THE NOTESSPREAD:

The Spread for the Notes for the indicated periods is as follows:

Period	Spread
From and including the Original Issue Date to but excluding the Interest Payment Date occurring in April 2009	0.25%
From and including the Interest Payment Date occurring in April 2009 to but excluding the Final Maturity Date	0.30%

EXTENSION ELECTION:

The Notes will mature on the Initial Maturity Date, unless the maturity of all or a portion of the Principal Amount of the Notes is extended in accordance with the procedures described below. In no event shall the maturity of the Notes be extended beyond the Final Maturity Date.

During a notice period relating to an Election Date (as defined below), a holder may elect to extend the maturity of all or any portion of the Principal Amount of its Notes (in Authorized Denominations) so that the maturity of the Notes will be extended to the Corresponding Maturity Date (as defined below) for the immediately following Election Date; provided, however, that if such Corresponding Maturity Date is not a Business Day, the maturity of such Notes will be the immediately preceding Business Day. The Election Dates will take place monthly on the 9th day of each month, commencing on April 9, 2008 and ending on March 9, 2009, except that if any Election Date would otherwise be a day that is not a Business Day, the notice period (described below) will be extended until 12:00 Noon, New York City time, on the first Business Day following the applicable Election Date, at which time such notice will be irrevocable. The respective Corresponding Maturity Date for each Election Date is the 9th day of the calendar month which is one calendar month after (1) April 9, 2009 (in the case of an initial extension of maturity) or (2) any later date to which the maturity date of the Notes has previously been extended; provided, that such maturity date shall be March 19, 2010 in respect of an election to extend on March 9, 2009 (the Corresponding Maturity Date). If a holder fails to make an effective election to extend all or a portion of the maturity of its Notes, the maturity date of such Notes (or portion thereof) will be the Corresponding Maturity Date for the immediately preceding Election Date. For example, assuming a holder has previously made an election to extend the maturity date to May 9, 2009, if a holder fails to make an effective election to extend all or a portion of its Notes on the Election Date occurring in May 2008, such portion will mature on May 9, 2009. If a holder elects to extend a portion of its Notes on the Election Date occurring in May 2008, such portion of its Notes will then be scheduled to mature on June 9, 2009.

To make an effective election on any Election Date, a holder must deliver a notice of election during the notice period for such Election Date. The notice period for an Election Date begins on the 5th Business Day immediately preceding the relevant Election Date and ends on the relevant Election Date provided that such Election Date is a Business Day. The Paying Agent must receive a holder's notice through the normal clearing system channels (described in more detail below), no later than 12:00 Noon, New York City time, on the last Business Day in the notice period (i.e. the relevant Election Date or, if the Election Date is not a Business Day, 12:00 Noon, New York City time, on the first Business Day following such Election Date), at which time such notice becomes irrevocable.

If, with respect to any Election Date, a holder does not make an election to extend the maturity of all or a portion of the Principal Amount of its Notes, the Principal Amount of such Notes will become due and payable on the earlier of the Initial Maturity Date or such later Corresponding Maturity Date related to the relevant Election Date on which the Notes were not extended. The Principal Amount of the Notes for which such election is not exercised will be represented by a new Note issued on such Election Date. The new Note so issued will have the same terms as the Notes, except that it will not be extendible, will have a separate CUSIP number, and its maturity date will be the earlier of the Initial Maturity Date or such later Corresponding Maturity Date to which the Notes were previously extended. The failure to elect to extend the maturity of all or any portion of a holder's Notes will be irrevocable and will be binding upon any subsequent holder of such Notes.

The Notes will be issued in registered global form and remain on deposit with The Depository Trust Company, the depository for the Notes. Therefore, a holder must exercise the option to extend the maturity of its Notes through the depository. To ensure that the depository receives timely notice of an election to extend the maturity of all or a portion of the Notes by a holder so that the depository can deliver notice of such election to the Indenture Trustee, as paying agent, prior to 12:00 Noon, New York City time, on the last Business Day in the notice period, a holder must instruct the direct or indirect participant through which it holds an interest in the Notes in accordance with the then applicable operating procedures of the depository.

The depository must receive any notice of election from its participants no later than 12:00 Noon, New York City time, on any Election Date, provided that such Election Date is a Business Day, for the depository to deliver timely notice of the election by a holder to the Indenture Trustee, as paying agent. If the applicable Election Date is not a Business Day, the depository must receive notice of election from its participants no later than 10:00 A.M., New York City time, on the first Business Day following such Election Date, for the depository to deliver timely notice of the election by a holder to the Indenture Trustee, as paying agent. Different firms have different deadlines for accepting instructions from their customers. A holder should consult the direct or indirect participant through which it holds an interest in the Notes to ascertain the deadline for ensuring that timely notice will be delivered to the depository.

SCHEDULE OF ADDITIONAL PROVISIONS RELATING TO THE FUNDING AGREEMENT

SPREAD:

The Spread for the Funding Agreement for the indicated periods is as follows:

Period	Spread
From and including the Effective Date to but excluding the Interest Payment Date occurring in April 2009	0.25%
From and including the Interest Payment Date occurring in April 2009 to but excluding the Stated Maturity Date	0.30%

REPAYMENT:

In the event (and only to the extent) it is necessary to fund payments due under the Notes as a result of the failure of a holder to elect to extend the maturity of all or any portion of the Principal Amount of its Notes, the Trust, as owner of the Funding Agreement, shall notify Principal Life that it must prepay all or a portion of the Deposit Amount (each, a Repayment). The Trust shall give Principal Life written notice of such Repayment requirement (the Repayment Notice) no later than the related Repayment Notice Date (as defined below) and Principal Life shall prepay the applicable portion of the Deposit Amount (including any accrued but unpaid interest) on the relevant Repayment Date (as defined below).

With respect to any Election Date for the Notes, the Repayment Notice Date shall be the third Business Day immediately following the applicable Election Date and the Repayment Date shall be the Initial Maturity Date or, if later, the Corresponding Maturity Date related to the relevant Election Date on which the holder previously elected to extend the maturity of all or any portion of the Principal Amount of its Notes, or if such Initial Maturity Date or Corresponding Maturity Date is not a Business Day the immediately preceding Business Day.

CERTAIN U.S. FEDERAL INCOME TAX CONSIDERATIONS

Discussion

The following discussion is based on the opinion of Sidley Austin LLP, special U.S. federal income tax counsel to the Trust (Special Tax Counsel). This summary supplements, and should be read in conjunction with, the discussion in the prospectus supplement under the caption Material United States Federal Income Tax Considerations.

The following discussion describes certain U.S. federal income tax consequences of the purchase, ownership and disposition of the Notes and of the new Notes (the Substitute Notes) that will be issued in exchange for the Notes when a holder elects not to extend the maturity of the Notes. This discussion is based on the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the Code), and existing and proposed Treasury regulations, revenue rulings, administrative interpretations and judicial decisions, all as currently in effect and all of which are subject to change, possibly with retroactive effect. This discussion deals only with Notes purchased by a U.S. Holder, as defined below, on original issuance and Substitute Notes (if applicable) and held as capital assets, within the meaning of section 1221 of the Code. It does not discuss all of the tax consequences that may be relevant to investors in light of their particular circumstances or to holders subject to special rules, such as persons other than U.S. Holders, insurance companies, banks, tax-exempt organizations, dealers in securities or foreign currencies, traders in securities that elect the mark-to-market method of accounting, persons holding the Notes as part of a hedging transaction, straddle, conversion transaction, or other integrated transaction, certain former U.S. citizens and resident aliens, persons liable for the alternative minimum tax or U.S. Holders whose functional currency, as defined in section 985 of the Code, is not the U.S. dollar. Persons considering the purchase of the Notes should consult with their own tax advisors concerning the application of the U.S. federal income tax laws to their particular situations as well as any tax consequences arising under the laws of any state, local or foreign jurisdiction.

As used in this section, the term U.S. Holder means a beneficial owner of a Note who or that is a U.S. person. The term U.S. person means (i) a citizen or resident of the United States for U.S. federal income tax purposes; (ii) a corporation, including an entity treated as a corporation for U.S. federal income tax purposes, created or organized in or under the laws of the United States, any state of the United States or the District of Columbia; (iii) an estate the income of which is subject to U.S. federal income taxation regardless of its source; or (iv) a trust if (a) a U.S. court is able to exercise primary supervision over the administration of the trust; and (b) one or more U.S. persons have the authority to control all substantial decisions of the trust. In addition, some trusts treated as U.S. persons before August 20, 1996 that elect to continue to be so treated to the extent provided in Treasury regulations shall be considered U.S. persons.

If an entity or arrangement treated as a partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes holds Notes, the tax treatment of a partner will generally depend upon the status of the partner and the activities of the partnership, and special rules may apply to such partners and partnerships. Such persons should consult their own tax advisors in that regard.

Interest on Notes and Sale of Notes

For the reasons discussed below, the interest rates on the Notes and Substitute Notes should be treated as qualified floating rates, and thus the Notes and Substitute Notes should qualify as variable rate debt instruments for U.S. federal income tax purposes. Accordingly, payments of interest on the Notes and Substitute Notes should be included by a U.S. Holder as ordinary income at the time the interest is paid or accrued, in accordance with the U.S. Holder's regular method of accounting for U.S. federal income tax purposes. U.S. Holders will generally recognize capital gain or loss on the sale, exchange or retirement of the Notes and Substitute Notes in an amount equal to the difference between the amount realized on the sale, exchange or retirement (excluding any amount attributable to accrued but unpaid interest, which will generally be taxed as such) and the U.S. Holder's tax basis in the Notes or Substitute Notes.

U.S. Holders that Elect to Extend Maturity Date

An election to extend the maturity of all or any portion of the principal amount of the Notes in accordance with the procedures described herein should not be a taxable event for U.S. federal income tax purposes. Special Tax Counsel has reached this conclusion based, in part, upon the Treasury regulations governing original issue discount on debt instruments (the OID Regulations).

Pursuant to Treasury regulations governing modifications to the terms of debt instruments (the Modification Regulations), the exercise of an option by a holder of a debt instrument to defer any scheduled payment of principal is a taxable event if, based on all the facts and circumstances, such deferral is considered material under the Modification

Regulations. The Modification Regulations do not specifically address the unique features of the Notes (including their economic equivalence to an approximately two-year debt instrument containing put options). However, under the OID Regulations, for purposes of determining the yield and maturity of a debt instrument that provides the holder with an unconditional option or options, exercisable on one or more dates during the term of the debt instrument, that, if exercised, require payments to be made on the debt instrument under an alternative payment schedule or schedules (e.g., an option to extend the maturity of the debt instrument), a holder is deemed to exercise or not exercise an option or combination of options in a manner that maximizes the yield on the debt instrument. Since the Spread will periodically increase during the term of the Notes from an initial amount equal to +0.25% to an amount equal to +0.30%, under the OID Regulations, as of the Original Issue Date, original holders of the Notes should be deemed to elect to extend the maturity of all of the principal amount of the Notes to the Final Maturity Date in accordance with the procedures described above. Accordingly, under the OID Regulations, the Final Maturity Date should be treated as the maturity date of the Notes for U.S. federal income tax purposes. Although it is unclear how the OID Regulations should apply in conjunction with the Modification Regulations to the Notes, Special Tax Counsel is of the opinion that, based upon the OID Regulations, an election to extend the maturity of all or any portion of the principal amount of the Notes in accordance with the procedures described above should not be a taxable event for U.S. federal income tax purposes. In addition, the Notes should not constitute contingent payment debt instruments that would be subject to certain Treasury regulations governing contingent payment obligations (the Contingent Payment Regulations).

Under the treatment described above, the Notes should be treated as having been issued with de minimis original issue discount. Therefore, the Notes should not be treated as having been issued with original issue discount for U.S. federal income tax purposes.

Prospective investors should note that, in particular because of the absence of authority directly addressing the unique features of the Notes, no assurance can be given that the Internal Revenue Service (the IRS) will accept, or that the courts will uphold, the characterization and the tax treatment of the Notes described above. If the IRS were successful in asserting that an election to extend the maturity of all or any portion of the principal amount of the Notes is a taxable event for U.S. federal income tax purposes, then Special Tax Counsel has indicated that investors would be required to recognize any gain inherent in the Notes at such time upon the exercise of such election. Because the Notes bear interest at variable rates, the Trust believes that changes in market interest rates are unlikely to have a significant effect on the market value of the Notes. The market value of the Notes, however, is impossible to predict and there can be no assurance that a U.S. Holder that makes such an election will not recognize a taxable gain if the election is treated as a taxable event. Also, if the IRS were successful in asserting that the Notes were subject to the Contingent Payment Regulations, Special Tax Counsel has indicated that the timing and character of income thereon would be affected. Among other things, investors may be required to accrue original issue discount income, subject to adjustments, at a comparable yield on the issue price. Furthermore, any gain recognized with respect to the Notes would generally be treated as ordinary income.

U.S. Holders that Do Not Elect to Extend Maturity Date

If a U.S. Holder does not elect to extend the maturity of the Notes as of an Election Date, the U.S. Holder will not be subject to U.S. federal income tax in connection with that non-election and will be subject to U.S. federal income tax on the Substitute Notes as described under Interest on Notes and Sale of Notes.

Information Withholding and Backup Withholding

In general, payments of interest on the Notes and Substitute Notes to, and payment of the proceeds from the sale of Notes and Substitute Notes by, a non-corporate U.S. Holder will be subject to information reporting requirements. In addition, such payments may be subject to backup withholding unless the U.S. Holder provides an accurate taxpayer identification number or certification of exempt status and otherwise complies with the backup withholding rules. The foregoing is a summary of the views of Special Tax Counsel and is not to be construed as tax advice for the benefit of investors. Prospective investors should consult their tax advisors regarding the U.S. federal income tax consequences of an investment in, and extending the maturity of, the Notes.
