Ann Vezina Letter to Existing HCMS Clients:
Subject Box: Xerox-ACS is Great News for ACS HCMS Clients

A lot of the media and industry buzz and speculation have been focused on what the ACS-Xerox deal will mean for ACS Human Capital Management clients. Let me set the record straight:

Xerox-ACS is great news for you and our other HCMS Clients. Why? Because once ACS and Xerox are fully integrated in 2010, no one else in the industry will come close to matching the focus and commitment; strategic power; and innovation the combined companies will bring to you:

1. Focus and Commitment

HCMS is a focused strategic growth area for both companies. One of the reasons Xerox wanted ACS was because we have a much greater market presence in some areas (such as HCMS) than they do. Each company will bring strength to the other. ACS will gain an instant global presence. Xerox will gain a much more diverse line of enterprise-level services to complement its core document technology and management business. You will continue to seamlessly receive world-class Human Capital Management services that will only get better as we leverage each other's strengths for you. One example of this focus is information management. Xerox is a global leader in information management...something that is also critical for successful HR delivery. ACS has developed world class technology in our HCMS segment that is focused on getting the right information to the right audience in the most effective manner possible. This also remains one of the most difficult challenges faced by your HR teams in serving your associates and our new organization will be very focused on leveraging the "best of breed" approaches to generate greater efficiency and effectiveness for you and your associates.

2. Strategic Power

Before the acquisition was announced, ACS was already in a class by itself in the HCMS space, offering HRO, TBO, Learning and Consulting (Buck Consultants) under one roof. Having global scale means everything in the HCMS business. Without ACS, Xerox is already a global giant, ranked 147 on the Fortune 500 list. With ACS, the company will be a $22 billion bigger giant, providing unequaled global market power. It means you will soon be served by one of the most renowned, admired and iconic business service brands in the world, allowing us to provide a broader service model for you.

3. Innovation

With the tremendous global brand strength of Xerox behind us, we are committed to investing even more in developing innovative, technology-focused solutions in the HCMS area. Xerox invests nearly $900 million annually in new product and service research and development. Owner of 8,900 patents, Xerox has been one of the world's most innovative companies since inventor Chester Carlson's first Xerox® copy machine went on the market in 1959.

What does that mean to you? It means benefitting from an exciting, unmatched flow of cutting-edge HCMS technology.

What's Next?

ACS will be a separate business unit within Xerox, with our executive team still intact. Lynn Blodgett will report to Ursula Burns, CEO for Xerox, as a separate line of business. ACS will be renamed ACS, a Xerox company, and we will maintain our headquarters in Dallas as well as our operations around the world. This will ensure a smooth transition, to which I am personally committed to ensure that there will be no disruption to your service.

Together with Xerox, ACS will be able to grow and scale in incredible ways. By leveraging Xerox's record of innovation, and R&D investments, we will be able to offer more comprehensive technology solutions in all Human Capital Management service areas. In short, the combination of Xerox and ACS will more strongly establish a complete global Human Capital Management solutions provider that surpasses every competitor and sets a new standard for technology and innovative service offerings.

Warm Regards,

Ann Vezina, Group President, ACS Enterprise Solutions & Services
